UNIT 3

Building relationships

‘If you destroy a bridge, be sure you can swim.’
African (Swahili) proverb

STARTING UP

Work in pairs. Ask each other the questions in the quiz. Then turn to page 132 to find out how good you are at building relationships.

1. You are in a room with a group of people who don’t know each other. Do you:
   a) introduce yourself?
   b) introduce a topic of conversation?
   c) wait for someone to say something?

2. When you are introduced to people, do you remember their:
   a) name?
   b) face?
   c) clothes?

3. On festive occasions, e.g. New Year, do you:
   a) send greeting cards to everyone you know?
   b) reply only to cards received?
   c) send e-mails?

4. Do you think small talk is:
   a) enjoyable?
   b) a waste of time?
   c) difficult to do well?

5. Do you prefer:
   a) to socialise with colleagues only if you have to?
   b) to socialise often with colleagues?
   c) not to socialise with colleagues?

6. Do you like to have conversations with:
   a) people who share your interests?
   b) almost anyone?
   c) people who are your social equals?

You are going to listen to Gillian Baker, Business Relations Manager with an international training organisation, talking about how companies can build strong business relationships. What factors do you think she will mention?

Listen to the interview and check the predictions you made in Exercise B.

What are the most important relationships for you a) at your place of work/study, b) outside your place of work/study? Why?
A Complete the table below with these verbs, which are often used with the word relations.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Positive meaning</th>
<th>Negative meaning</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>build up relations</td>
<td>break off relations</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

B Choose the correct verb in each sentence.

1. Sales staff who are impolite to customers disrupt / damage the reputation of a company.
2. We are planning to promote / establish branch offices in Spain next year.
3. By merging with a US company, we greatly strengthened / maintained our sales force.
4. Relations with customers have been fostered / undermined recently by poor after-sales service.
5. Thanks to a new communications system, we are souring / improving relations with suppliers.
6. A strike at our factory last year resumed / disrupted production for several weeks.
7. We could not agree on several points, so we broke off / cut off talks regarding a joint venture.
8. The success of our new product launch was cemented / jeopardised by an unimaginative advertising campaign.
9. In order to gain market share in China, we are building up / cutting off relationships with local agents.
10. Business relations between the two countries have been severed / fostered by official visits and trade delegations.

C Match these sentence halves. Then make five more sentences with the verbs in exercises A and B.

1. Widespread rumours of a hostile takeover bid are certain
   a) are a credit to its highly effective PR Department.
2. The Accounts Department’s very slow payment of invoices
   b) have cemented relations between the two companies.
3. The long-term contracts, which will run for the next five years,
   c) its close relations with several major foreign investors have been jeopardised.
4. The excellent relations the company enjoys with the local community
   d) is causing stormy relations with some of the company’s suppliers.
5. As a result of the government’s imposition of currency controls,
   e) to strain relations between the two leading French software companies.

D Give an example of a company you know which is good at building relationships with its customers. How do they do this?

See the DVD-ROM for the i-Glossary.

How East is meeting West

by Frederik Balfour

Guanxi. It’s the first word any businessperson learns upon arriving in China. Loosely translated, guanxi means “connections” and it is the key to everything: securing a business license, landing a distribution deal, even finding that special colonial villa in Shanghai. Fortunes have been made and lost based on whether the seeker has good or bad guanxi.

Now, like so many things in China, the old notion of guanxi is starting to make room for the new. Businesspeople—local and foreign—are tapping into emerging networks that revolve around shared work experiences or taking business classes together. Networking that once happened in private rooms at smart restaurants now goes on in plain view—at wine tastings for the nouveau riche, say, or at Davos-style get-togethers such as the annual China Entrepreneurs Forum held annually at China’s Yabuli ski resort. By tapping into these informal groups, Western companies can theoretically find potential business partners.

Many of China’s networks meet through an American or European MBA program. Gary Wang attended INSEAD, the famous French business school outside Paris. Today, he runs a YouTube wannabe called Tudou that was built largely on connections made at business school. A fellow student who worked at Ogilvy & Mather Worldwide helped out with public relations. And another INSEAD graduate, Helen Wong, a partner at Granite Global Ventures, helped Wang raise $8.5 million after a friend heard him speak at the China Europe International Business School (CEIBS) in Shanghai.

“Without knowing all these people through INSEAD,” says Wang, “Tudou probably never would have happened.”

Executive MBA programs, all the rage now in China, have become guanxi Central. Targeted at senior executives and high-powered entrepreneurs, the programs are attracting some of China’s most successful businesspeople. “It’s important to have friends in different industries and meet people from different cities,” says Zhou Junjun, who runs the Chinese operations of a South Korean systems company and did an Executive MBA at the Cheung Kong Graduate School of Business in Beijing.

Multinational companies, of course, provide rich opportunities for networking, too. Ogilvy Public Relations Worldwide holds an annual party for former employees, many of whom now work for the company’s clients, including Lenovo, Johnson & Johnson, and solar-panel maker Suntek. McKinsey has plenty of alumni who have moved into senior posts at major companies and start-ups. “Obviously, they became a valuable network for us,” says Andrew Grant, who runs the firm’s China practice in Shanghai.

If one thing has remained the same for foreigners in China, it is this: cracking the guanxi code still takes hard work and perseverance. Networking at an alumni barbecue or wine tasting goes only so far when trying to build relationships of any lasting value. After the first 30 minutes at these functions, say people who have attended, foreigners and locals almost invariably break off into separate groups.

What’s more, Chinese businesspeople are more experienced and globally savvy than they were just a few years ago. They’re looking for business connections who can help them expand outside China or get their company listed on a foreign exchange. “People want something more professional and strategic from their relationships,” says Li Yifei, Viacom’s chief representative in China. “They want to know how good your guanxi is back home.”

LANGUAGE REVIEW
Multi-word verbs

Multi-word verbs are particularly common in spoken English. They are made with a verb and particles such as at, away, down and off. Four types are:

1. Without an object
   Networking now goes on in plain view.

2. With an object – separable
   We’ll draw up a new contract. / We’ll draw a new contract up.

3. With an object – inseparable
   They’re looking for business connections.

4. With two particles
   I’m really looking forward to meeting you next week.

Grammar reference page 147

CD 1.19 Two executives are talking about building relationships with clients. Put the conversation in the correct order. Then listen and check your answers.

☐ a) They were both annoyed. My contact thought I had let him down, and his boss simply decided not to turn up at the meeting. We’d set up a meeting in Brussels by e-mail, but he called it off at the last minute. I’d already checked in at the hotel.

☐ b) Oh, what went wrong?

☐ c) Well, I’m going to carry on working until about six. We could meet after that.

☐ d) How did you turn it round?

☐ e) It’s fine now, but at the start of the year, it was disastrous.

☐ f) So, how’s the relationship with Toyota going?

☐ g) Well, I went over my contact’s head and went directly to his boss at Toyota Motors Europe. I was really trying to clinch a deal.

☐ h) Glad it worked out. Anyway, are you free for a drink later?

☐ i) Well, I had to build up my relationship with my original contact again. At first, he kept putting me off. But eventually we met up and I focused on our relationship, not the next sale. Now we get on really well and sometimes play golf together.

☐ j) Was he annoyed?

B

Underline all the multiword verbs in the conversation in Exercise A. Then decide which of them has a similar meaning to each of these verb phrases.

1. have a friendly relationship
2. registered
3. make stronger
4. change something into something successful
5. postponing/delaying
6. appear/arrive somewhere
7. disappoint
8. arrange
9. continue
10. cancelled

C

Rephrase these comments using the multiword verbs from Exercise B.

1. We can’t hold the meeting tomorrow.
   We’ll have to call off the meeting tomorrow.

2. They’ve postponed the presentation until Thursday.

3. I’m sorry I’ve disappointed you.

4. She’s arranged the conference call for nine o’clock.

5. This is a crucial meeting. Make sure you arrive on time.

6. Everyone continued working as if nothing had happened.

7. You’ll need to register at the Hilton around four o’clock.

8. I have a good relationship with my new boss.

Networking

Networking is an essential way of establishing good business relationships. Listen to the first conversation and say whether these statements are true or false. Correct the false ones.

1. Howard Clark’s company is probably less successful this year than last year.
2. Howard’s company does not have time to redesign the website itself.
3. Judy Masters thinks that Howard will have no problems contacting Martin Englemann.

Listen to the second, telephone conversation, then answer these questions.

1. Why does the website need redesigning?
2. How does Martin Englemann react to Howard’s offer to redesign the website?

C

Now listen to both conversations again and complete these extracts.

1. Hello. Haven’t we ………somewhere before?
2. Maybe I could ……….. somewhere ………… there. I know someone who’s a top-class web designer […] I’m sure he’d be interested. Why ……….. somewhere ………… him?
3. Great. You haven’t got his phone number, ………….. …………?
4. Yep … 07825 300646. Can I ………….. your name when I call him?
5. OK, I’ll ………….. somewhere ………… him. Thanks very much ………….. …………

Work in pairs and role-play these two situations.

1. The US owner of an up-market chain of restaurants phones a Canadian supplier of shellfish. The supplier was recommended by a friend of the owner.
2. A conference entitled ‘Entry strategies for overseas markets’ gives participants an opportunity to do some networking.

Al-Munir Hotel and Spa Group

An Arab hotel group wishes to build customer loyalty by getting to know its visitors better and encouraging them to return to its hotels.

Background
Vanessa Schultz, recently appointed Director of Customer Relations, has been hired by the Al-Munir Hotel and Spa Group to improve the group's customer relations. The group has a number of hotels in Oman and the United Arab Emirates. Vanessa Schultz's first task is to focus on building better relationships with the guests who use the hotels, especially with those who may become frequent visitors. The challenges facing the hotel group are exemplified by the following facts. In the last five years:
- group turnover has fallen by 22%
- the group’s room occupancy rate has dropped from 81% to 62%
- customer surveys have indicated increasing dissatisfaction with the hotels
- the retention rate of guests has fallen from 25% to 8%
- there seems to be little customer loyalty to the hotel group
- recent reviews have reduced two of the hotels’ rating from four stars to three.

Vanessa Schultz realises that she and her colleagues must come up with a plan for building long-term relationships with guests. Discuss the possible reasons for the disappointing trends noted above.

Look at the results of a customer satisfaction survey on the right. What conclusions should Vanessa Schultz draw from them?

Vanessa Schultz has used the services of Abd Al-Halim Hamdi, a local consultant specialising in hotel management, to find out why many guests do not return to stay at the hotels on a regular basis. Hamdi carried out a survey of guests by telephone and written questionnaires and is now reporting his findings to Vanessa Schultz.

What do you think will be the main reasons why guests do not return to the hotel?

CD1.22 Listen to the conversation and check if your reasons are the same as the ones that Hamdi gives to Vanessa Schultz.
Vanessa Schultz has called a meeting which will be attended by members of the Guest Relations and Marketing Departments. This is the agenda for the meeting.

1. How can the Al-Munir Group make guests feel ‘special’ and ‘highly valued’?
2. What can the group do to a) reward loyal customers, and b) persuade guests who have stayed once to return?
3. What can be done to make staff more motivated and customer-orientated in their approach to their work?
4. What questions should the management be asking in order to gather information for an accurate, up-to-date profile of each guest? For example: How did the guest find out about the hotel?
5. How can the group maintain its relationship with guests once they have left its hotels?
6. What other actions can the group take to improve customer loyalty, increase the average scores in the next customer satisfaction survey and get back its four-star rating?

Task

Work in small groups. You are members of either the Guest Relations or Marketing Departments.

1. Prepare for the meeting by discussing each item on the agenda. One of you should lead the discussion and note down your ideas.
2. Meet as one group. One person should play the role of Head of Guest Relations.
3. Share your ideas on each item of the agenda.
4. Agree on an action plan which you will present to the Board of Directors of the Al-Munir Group at their next meeting.

Writing

Write a sales letter to Marion Wise, a businesswoman who has stayed frequently at Al-Munir hotels and is one of the group’s most loyal customers. Describe a special offer which you are making to a small group of your priority customers. Make the letter as personalised as possible.

Watch the Case study commentary on the DVD-ROM.
